ARTIST-RESEARCHER STATEMENT

Develop and explore Art Based methodologies, their potential for application and to advance/refine work developing new models for change management adapted for communities to empower and uplift individuals
Currently her work is focused on Riverside California.

GOALS

- Engage new partnerships to support rethinking of what constitutes Public Research with new understanding of the commons and interest in the socially driven private sector
- Foster new collaborations in community change management infrastructure for social solution prototyping that improved outcomes while managing risks.

STRATEGY

- There has been research supporting that art helps people develop new ways of seeing and finding meaning. However, experience suggests it requires the right art to get the best results. And right has to do with attention to these deeper sources of origin that converge in meaningful ways to inspire, create or support.

PRINCIPLES

- collaborating with businesses and institutions as part of the community,
- collaborating with people in the community to explore human rights and sustainability strategies,
- collaborating with people to be served by solution,
- collaborating across sectors/communities to expand knowledge bases to develop holistic solutions.
